Bringing Fine Art to Life

Established by The Hon. Patrick Howard in the late 1980's, Fine Art Lighting is the preferred choice for discerning private collections and commercial clients across the UK and internationally. As established experts in the specialist world of picture lighting and hanging our reputation is well-established, and after decades at the top of our field, we take pride in the high quality of our work and the atmosphere we are able to create for our clients. We are a privately owned and totally independent family business.

Bring your home to life with the right placement and lighting of the most treasured works in your collection.

We provide tailored support to perfectly suit every client's need. No request is too big, no challenge too great.

Hanging

The correct positioning of an artwork in its surroundings is fundamental to creating the perfect balance and harmony in a home or commercial space. Hanging your artwork is the first step to creating a perfect environment and getting it right requires both knowledge and skill. The Fine Art Lighting team will draw on its decades of experience to get the positioning just right every time. We understand how to position a work of art in order to display its full potential and enhance its surroundings.

Entirely professional, we use the most appropriate traditional modes of hanging. We never use picture wire. All pictures are hung securely on two fixed points ensuring the pictures never move, even when dusted without moving the frame.

We have extensive experience in arranging works of different shapes and sizes into beautiful montages and specialise in finding the right arrangement of individual works in challenging spaces. Our focus is always to create a seamless and visually pleasing overall effect, while still drawing your eye to the beauty of each individual piece.

Lighting

The transformative power of lighting a work of art cannot be overestimated. From still life to portraiture, lighting brings a work of art to life, adding tone and depth to a piece, no matter what the subject is. Colours start to glow, new details can be seen, and the picture comes alive. In our opinion, the best way to illuminate a room is with a combination of both picture lights and table lights, creating smooth, indirect sources that are more comfortable to the eye.

Have you ever noticed when you have bought a painting or a drawing and taken it home and been disappointed that it looked better when you saw it in the gallery? Chances are that is because it was lit professionally in the gallery to make it look as attractive as possible to potential buyers such as yourself. Why not do the same in your own home?

Our Picture Lights

Our picture lights are all manufactured in England to the highest specification. They are fitted with swan-necked arms and are hand sprayed with antique gilt paint to achieve that timeless elegance of the traditional picture light.

There are 8 different picture light sizes and 8 different arm lengths, so that perfect coverage is always achieved.

The reflector systems are engineered to take especially manufactured LED lamps, which give a perfect colour temperature and brightness to enhance and bring out the colours of any picture. These LEDs have a very low electrical consumption – about an 87% reduction from the old picture lights – and also have a very long life.

Our picture lights are altogether the most elegant and efficient picture light that you can buy.

Advisory

With more than 30-years of experience working with fine art across the residential and commercial markets we are perfectly placed to advise you on the maintenance and restoration of your collection.

Furthermore, we have an extensive network of highly skilled specialists in particular fields, including framing and conservation. You can rely on us to understand your requirements, provide impartial, sound advice, and to help ensure the right approach is taken, no matter how challenging your needs or requirements.

We advise that you plan your lighting as early in your redevelopment or improvement project as possible, ideally before you decorate. We provide a free advisory service to explain where lighting points should be so they can be pre-wired and hidden behind the plaster for use when required. We will provide a map of these hidden lighting points so you can add picture lighting at any time in the
